The Swarthmore Chautauqua Opens Tomorrow Afternoon At 3 O'Clock At The Pines

Sales Manager J. B. Tussing hopes by tonight to have completed the whole roster of campaign workers.

The women captains are far ahead of the men captains in building their teams. The men, however, had a meeting at headquarters this morning at 11:00 and are pushing the work of getting their teams signed, so that Manager Tussing and Commanders Micht and Woodward are hopeful of soon completing their organizations.

Chairman S. L. Woodward of the committee on fraternal organizations, announced that the invitation to these bodies, along with other societies, organizations and clubs, had met with a satisfactory response. A letter has been posted to all organizations that the committee could think of, inviting them to participate by subscribing as an organization to the hospital building fund.

"Subscriptions of lodges and other organizations should not be taken to mean that the members of these organizations will be relieved of the responsibility of personally subscribing," stated Mr. Woodward. "The object in having the organization

Three Fayette Miners Are Badly Hurt

Three of the 14 miners who received injuries Saturday when Fayette county suffered its second serious mine accident within two days, are in a critical condition in the hospital and little hope is held for their recovery. The three men suffered fractured spines and other hurts in a cavein. Four other miners are in the hospital at Uniontown, and doctors say they will recover. Seven other injured men are being treated in their homes at Lemont, near Uniontown, where the accident occurred.

The fourteen men were partly buried under slate, dirt and coal, when a section of the walls and roof collapsed and were extricated by fellow workers.

The Lemont mine is the property of the H. C. Frick Coal company, owners of the Gate mine, where last Friday 10 miners were killed by an explosion.

Miner Receives Body Injuries Struck By Auto

Frank Gillingham, aged 42 years, coal miner, and resident of Fayette City, is a patient in the Charleroi Monessen hospital suffering with a broken left leg and collar bone sustained Saturday night at 10 o'clock when struck and knocked down by a Ford roadster, while he was walking towards his home on the Fairhope-Fayette City road.

Gillingham had been to Belle Vernon earlier in the evening and taking a street car to Fairhope, was obliged to walk to his home in Fayette City. When nearing the bottom of the "steep grade," a short distance this side of Fayette City, the driver of the Ford roadster, William Andrews, of Adamsville, driving into Fayette City, blinded by the piercing lights of a passing motorist, missed the road, and after hitting and knocking Gillingham to the ground, went over the side of the highway down a small embankment, bringing his machine to a standstill in a field to the right of the road. Andrews came to the immediate assistance of the man whom he had hit, hailed a passing machine which brought Gillingham to the local hospital, where his condition is reported very much improved this morning.

The driver, who is employed by the Smith Construction Company of Youngstown, Ohio, now working on the highway under construction leading into Greensburg, was held in Fayette City for a short time until his identity was ascertained. The young woman, who accompanied him, overcome by fright, received restoratives at the home of Squire and Mrs. Bent Johnson.

The Swarthmore Chautauqua opens tomorrow at the Pines. The Chautauqua this year promises to be not only better attended than that of last year, advance announcement is to the effect that it will also be better in quality. This is saying much, for the Chautauqua last year pleased the most fastidious.

The opening exercises tomorrow will take place at 3 o'clock. A concert will be given by the Pan-American Marimba band, said to be one of the best musical organizations of its kind in the United States. There will be Junior Chautauqua for all Juniors.

At night at 7:30 o'clock, the band herebefore mentioned, will again furnish the musical features, and in the lecture forum Frank Tannebaum will give his celebrated lecture entitled, "Crime and Punishment."

People who have not as yet secured their season tickets can secure them at Night's Bookstore, John B. Schafer's Jewelry establishment, or of any of the guarantors.

The program for Tuesday: Morning Junior Chautauqua. Afternoon, concert, Swarthmore Trio; lecture, "Popular Presentation of a Vital Subject," Chautauqua superintendent. Night, comedy-drama, "The Honor of the Mayor." A special feature.

LODGE SUBMITS OPERATION FOR BLADDER TROUBLE

Boston, July 28.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, veteran Republican leader in the Senate, is seriously ill in a Cambridge hospital today following a sudden attack of bladder trouble which resulted in a hurried operation Sunday.

Attending physicians described the condition of the Senator as serious but satisfactory. Senator Lodge is doing very well, it was explained for a man of his years, but his advanced age—74—naturally makes the situation dangerous.

A second operation may be necessary before the patient can be discharged from the hospital, it was feared. The Senator has been a sufferer from bladder trouble for some time, a condition not uncommon in men of his age.

It is hoped the crisis of the illness will be passed within 24 hours.

The Senator displayed extraordinary fortitude when he was told he must submit to the knife, and was driven from the home of his son in Nahant, to the hospital in an automobile. He was cheerful and said he expected to be out within a few days.

Merchant Has Car Stolen; Is Recovered

On Saturday forenoon at 11 o'clock, the Cadillac Sedan car, property of Philip Wayne, Charleroi merchant, was stolen. The license number of the machine is 44988-1. It is maroon in color. One Ralph Kelly, aged 24 years, a resident of Avella, a mulatto, was arrested, and is charged with stealing the machine, being incarcerated in the borough lockup. The arrest of Kelly was effected by Charleroi police. It is probable that his hearing will be held before a local justice of the peace tomorrow.

It is said that Kelly took the car to take a lady friend, a Miss Bush, of Canonsburg, for a ride.

The capture of Kelly at Avella was effected at 2 o'clock this morning.

GUILTY SHOULD BE PUNISHED IN IMBRIE'S MURDER

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The United States government today warned Persia that it may break off relations with Cehran government if satisfaction is not obtained for the murder of Robert W. Embrie, American Vice-Council.

The American note of protest made public today from the State department, declared that "full reparations should be made for the killing of Embrie; that punishment should be meted out to the guilty."

The Nation demands that "assurance be given and enforced of adequate protection for the lives of American citizens and safety of officials of the American government, in Persia would be guaranteed."

BLUE BIRD INN RAID YIELDS A POT OF $900

The raiding of the Blue Bird Inn, notorious roadhouse on the West Newton road, at 11 o'clock Saturday night, came as a climax of a series of raids conducted by the state police in Westmoreland county over the week-end, headed by Sergeants Tomek and Buckley.

The troopers swooped down on the place at the height of the activities, breaking in on a game of dice and confiscated the "pot" of $900. There were over 200 men and women in the place at the time of the raid, who were all placed under arrest. Justice of the Peace Rankin of Rostraver township was called to the place and he accepted their forfeits. The hearings will be heard this evening at 7:30 before Justice Rankin.

In addition to the large "pot" seized, the troopers also seized a quantity of slot machines and a quantity of liquor.

CHARLEROI MAN SUFFERS LOSS THROUGH A FIRE

A ten-room frame dwelling occupied by Arthur Tols at 31 Reed avenue, Monessen, and owned by John B. Bizet of Charleroi, was practically destroyed by fire Sunday morning at 3 o'clock.

The flames were discovered by neighbors, who were awakened by the smoke and immediately turned in an alarm. The Monessen Fire department responded immediately, but the flames had gained considerable headway between the walls and they were greatly handicapped.

Some time between closing time Saturday night and opening time this morning, the Donahoe Grocery Company, Inc., store, 613 Fallowfield avenue, was robbed. The sum taken as reported by Chief of Police James A. Murphy was $342.02.

The district manager for the company refused, when asked for a statement to make any, other than that an investigation is being made. Chief Murphy said that while one investigation is that the thieves entered the establishment by the rear, he was of the opinion that the robbery was an inside job. He said that a thorough investigation will be made, and the guilty, if possible, brought to justice.

According to Chief Murphy, color is lent to it being an inside job through the fact that the money was taken from the safe by some person who evidently knew the combination. The money was in two separate bags, one representing the receipt, the grocery department, and the other the meat department. The safe had been opened, the money taken, and then locked.

No arrests have been made in connection with the robbery. The money was taken from the safe of the grocery department, and the receipt, the meat department. The safe had been opened, the money taken, and then locked.

Home of Steve Toth, Searched By State Police Yields a 150-Gallon Still, a 50-Gallon Still, 150 Gallons "Finished" And Mash

Toth and His Partner In Business, Harry Cohen, Latter of Donora, Taken to the Monessen Lockup, And Are Being Held Pending a Hearing

The state police succeeded in unearthing one of the largest distilling outfits that has ever been brought to light in this section, Saturday evening at 5 o'clock, when Sergeant Tomek and Sergeant Buckley paid a visit to the Steve Toth home in North Belle Vernon and seized a 150-gallon still, a 50-gallon still, 150 gallons of finished product, 75 barrels of mash, which, when finished, would make over 3,000 gallons of booze. They also found large quantities of coloring fluid and other paraphernalia needed in the wholesale production of the liquor. This discovery was by far the largest yet found in the valley.

Steve Toth, as well as his partner in the business, Harry Cohen, of 104 Seventh street, Donora, were taken to the Monessen lockup, and are being held pending a hearing, which will probably take place sometime today. Cohen is a Donora huckster, and while peddling the edibles, it is alleged, or inferred, found many opportunities to dispose of the liquor while on his route.

ONLY FOUR DAYS FOR THE REBATE

Taxpayers of Charleroi and this locality have but four days in which to secure the usual abatement of five per cent on the state and county taxes. After August 1 the face of the taxes will be charged.

Taxes for Charleroi and North Charleroi boroughs can be paid at the Bank of Charleroi and Trust Company, and it may be well to visit the bank early in the day, as there seems to be little doubt but that the officials of the institution will do a "land office business" in the regard in reference for the short space of time intervening between now and Friday, August 1.

Charleroi Defeats The Duquesne Steel Club By A Score Of 2-0

In a game that for uniqueness stands without a parallel in contests played here this season, Charleroi, on Saturday afternoon, at the local park, defeated the Duquesne Steel Baseball club by a score of 2-0.

Beatty was opposed by a youth named Henderson, and the game was pretty much of a pitcher's battle, with Beatty having a shade, as he held the visitors to five hits while the locals were garnering seven. Each twirler struck out five men.

Beatty was in superb form, and the visitors could do nothing with him. He is a twirler that should not be pitched over once a week, as he is a veteran of constitutional environment that cannot do his best if he is used in the box oftener than that. Henderson, who was in the box for Duquesne, gave an exhibition of curve ball pitching seldom seen in a baseball game here. He used curves almost entirely, and the only local player to hit him successfully was "Bill" Phillips, first baseman, who got three of the seven blows credited to the home club. Yengst, of the Monessen Legion team, who played second for the Charleroi club, got two hits. One of the unique features was the fact that Anderson, in middle, did not get a chance, and Lou Phillips left field, and Consonery, right field, accepted but one fly ball each. The Charleroi infield, though, was busy, the playing of Smith, Krosnoff, Yengst and Phillips being scintillating. Charlie Davis was behind the bat, and did well, though his throwing to second was a little off color.

Tomorrow afternoon the Charleroi club travels to Harmarville, where they play the Consumers. The locals will have to face Martin, in all probability, and as he knows the local players by virtue of his having previously pitched here, they are up against a hard proposition. Manager Mathers said Saturday that there is room in the bus for about a dozen to accompany the team. The expense will be $2. The team leaves here at noon.

On Thursday, Charleroi plays Beaver Falls at Beaver. We believe Manager Mathers has not scheduled a game here for Saturday.

An old tobacco secret re-discovered—

Granger

1924—
a popular seller

quarter-million smokers

A new richness
from an old-time process

Made for pipes—cut for pipes
—packed sensibly to save money

NOW it can be told. Three years ago we decided to revive a famous old secret method of mellowing tobacco—"Wellman's Method", it was called.

For three years we have been quietly trying it out—we, and about a quarter-million shrewd pipe-smokers who discovered it for themselves.

No whirlwind campaigns, no "special offers", no extravagant claims; Granger Rough Cut has made good on its taste alone. There could be no better proof of its quality.

Now we are ready to "tell the world".

An extraordinary pipe tobacco. "Wellman's Method"—now ours exclusively—not only mellows tobacco, but "rounds it out"—gives it a new taste, richer and milder.

There's no other method like it, nor any other tobacco like Granger.

And not only differently mellowed, but cut differently—cut for pipes. The Rough Cut burns more slowly, hence smokes cooler—and a pipe-load lasts nearly twice as long.

And finally—notice the package.

If Granger Rough Cut were packed in fancy lithographed tins, it would cost 15 cents.

But wrapped in smart heavy foil, you get this fuller, longer, cooler smoke at a third less cost. Foil instead of costly tin—hence the price.

Too good to be true? Ask any man who has tried it. Better yet—get out your pipe!

10¢

Granger Rough Cut

A Pointer on Tobacco—

The slower a tobacco burns, the cooler it smokes. Also the longer it lasts. This slow burning is due to the fact that Granger is "rough cut" to smoke slow and cool—cut for pipes, not cigarettes. And Wellman's famous old secret method produces richer fragrance and taste.

LOGGITT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

Are You This Man?

Some man now under general observation is going through the torturing experience of making up his mind. It is not difficult for him to reach the conclusion that he would like to save his money. He has been trying to do this for years—doubtless with success.

But now there is a movement broadcast in this community that is forcing him to think, it is making him ask of himself the question: "What shall it profit me if I gain the world of wealth and lose my life?"

He knows other men have made up their minds that life is more valuable than dollars. He knows that other men have done their thinking and have reached a decision. He knows that other men with less income and less wealth than he has have shown more faith in their community and more consideration for humanity than he has. He knows that the decision he reaches will make him judged by his friends, his business associates, by everyone, as a giver or a receiver, as a helper or a drag weight, as a considerate thoughtful unselfish good citizen who does his part and does it cheerfully and willingly, or as a selfish, miserly individual who gets all he can get, keeps all he has and lives for himself without regard for his fellowmen.

This man may not be that bad—or he may be worse; but in any case he is thinking, and he is going to decide between dollars or lives.

The point is that the process of arriving at an accurate and fair conclusion as to his personal responsibility in connection with the new hospital building fund, is making this man think. He knows that he must weigh his own position and wealth and his ability to help, because if he does not, the rest of the men in this community will.

If his silence, or his lack of generosity in subscribing liberally to the hospital building fund, are hard for the rest of us, it must be simply cruel to him, for he knows that others are carrying the burden that is his share. That brings up in his thinking a matter of a fight with his own soul which will continue to revolt in his conscience until, against his own desires, he comes some time to the day when he will need the hospital personally which the money of his neighbors has builded for him.

He has, however, the consolation of knowing that he has but to take advantage of the opportunity now offered, follow the practice of other men in a similar relation to the community, and give all he can to this fund.

The truth is he has never given much thought to the hospital because it has never been called to his attention before as it is now. He has just taken it as a matter of course. But now some one asked him how much he had given to the new hospital building fund—and he is thinking about it.

Here is a public institution in which he is vitally interested—whether he knows it or not. Perhaps some time his own life may be saved because someone has made the investment for him; has built the hospital against the day when he may need it!

Yet he has not invested his share!

And what is his share in the building fund?

He thought the hospital an institution only distantly related to his personal interests—that's what he thought until someone asked him how much he was going to give.

And now it looks to him as if the community should have the very best hospital facilities. He sees that it means something to his business, that his employees, his family, and his friends should have the best care and treatment of the best hospital when the need comes.

He has made up his mind to subscribe as much money to the building fund as he can afford to pay in the next five years. He, for one, has solved the problem of—

CLOUD RIDERS OF THE WORLD.

Borrowing a term employed in the Olympic games at Paris, and first employed when a Greek runner carried to Athens the news of the defeat of the Persians under Darius, some one has characterized the great round-the-world trip of our army fliers as "a Marathon of the air." But the term is scarcely applicable, for, though our fliers make good speed, while on the wing, on the whole they are taking their time, with plenty of rest between "hops." They have been successful in the Atlantic from Cape Cod to Alaska, to Japan, to Constantinople, to Paris, and to Scotland. And now from the Orkney Islands they will fly over the northern seas to the Faroe Islands, Iceland, Greenland, and thence to Hamilton Inlet, Labrador—in all 3,450 miles. Then their troubles will be over, for the Overland flight to the starting point in California will be comparatively plain sailing.

Obviously the route chosen, has lengthened the distance that would have to be covered in a straight or direct flight around the world. But in the present stage of the advance in the art of aviation it was prudent, perhaps imperative, to cut down to shortest possible limits the perilous ocean flights. So the great achievement is neither an unbroken "marathon" nor a direct globe-girdling trip as the crow flies, but a round-about course, employing islands as well as continents as stepping-stones in order to fight shy of the vaster ocean distances. Nevertheless the perils of this epic journey by air have demanded extraordinary heroism as well as skill. Ridding the clouds of the world, our fliers have more than rivaled the flying horses of Greek legend, and by comparison have made almost child's play of the athletic games both at old Olympic and modern Paris.

A ROYAL PLAGIARIST.

Queen Marie of Roumania has published a book. Her plans to capture the Prince of Wales for her young daughter hanging fire, the Prince being slow to propose and possibly disposed to escape this last gentle noose like all the others, Queen Marie is said to have confessed that she was hard up and must have money. So she made haste to write a novel with a view to meet the need. But it is the misfortune of her publisher that she seems to have looked upon copyrights as cynically as some of the literary hacks who throw together picture dramas on order of movie producers, appropriating right and left any literary material found handy and adaptable for the purpose.

Queen's Marie's "Voice of the Mountain" was promptly accepted, her name alone being counted on to sell, and came out on time, but now we read: "Poor Mr. Duckworth, her publisher, has had to write to every newspaper and explain and apologize for five poems that appear in the book. He had not realized before publication that the five poems were Fiona Macleod's and that not only had they been reproduced without permission or acknowledgment but one of them had actually been altered by Queen Marie in order to adapt it to her story." Under the law of England royal personages cannot be sued in the courts, but no such immunity is enjoyed by mere publishers, and the unfortunate Duckworth may have to claim a Queen's earnings in order to have means where-with to defend himself. Surely he has the moral right to do so. Queen Marie would have found the Prince of Wales as a son-in-law a much better investment. If she could only capture him for her daughter and thus annex some part of his income. But, alas, he is none too susceptible, and keeps his eyes open, walking warily just beyond reach of every matrimonial lasso that is thrown.

Good Manners.

Italian Genius Came to Aid of British Library

The British museum library is the first library of the modern world. Like many other British institutions, it owes much of its greatness to a foreigner, Anthony Panizzi, a renegade Italian. Born at Modena in 1797, Panizzi became a student at Pavia, and then joined a revolutionary movement in his native duchy.

The revolution failed and Panizzi fled; first to Switzerland and then across Europe, arriving in a destitute condition in London. He became a teacher of Italian, received an appointment at the library, and came into power as its keeper in the first year of Queen Victoria's reign.

At that time the library, which had been founded in 1753, was languishing for want of intelligent supervision. It contained a valuable collection of some 250,000 books, but the cataloging and arrangements for reference were bad.

When Panizzi left its service, some thirty years later, it contained 630,000 volumes, housed under a single dome. This dome, which is second only in size to that of St. Peter's, Rome, was one of the many clever ideas of Panizzi, who was altogether a remarkable character. He was knighted some time before his death in 1879.

Not to Be Outdone

It was the last day of school before annual spring vacation and a teacher in the junior high school at Anderson was having little success with a class of pupils whose thoughts were bent more on the vacation than on studies. With the training of a first-rate schoolmistress she feigned that all was well with her, but school children are not "fooled" by a teacher.

Just as the last class of the day adjourned, she made this remark to the students:

"I hope you all have a very enjoyable spring vacation, and hope that when you come back you'll be in your right minds."

"Same to you," the children replied in unison.—Indianapolis News.

Fruitful Land

It has been said that there is no place in South Africa where some variety fruit will not grow and thrive. Apples, apricots, avocado pears, bananas, cherries, gooseberries, figs, grapefruit, lemons, limes, pineapples, plums, quinces, melons, olives, oranges and peaches are grown in the Union on a commercial scale.

One of the greatest advantages held by South Africa as a fruit exporting country is that, owing to its geographical position, its products reach the British market in the off season, and may also reach the United States. The trade has been remunerative despite heavy spoilage.

Guard Against Poison

There are many schemes for marking poison bottles, but here is one of the safest and best. By the simple means of pasting a strip of sandpaper over the face of bottles containing poison, says Science and Invention, the danger of getting a bottle by mistake, even on account of darkness, is eliminated. Persons grasping the bottle will receive no discomfort, but will get sufficient warning as to its poisonous contents. Most of the body of the bottle should be covered with sandpaper. A small label designating the poison should be pasted somewhere above the sandpaper.

His Hard Luck

"Take a chance on a raffle, will ya?" asked the stranger.
"No, sir," replied Levi. "I never took but one chance on a raffle and I won that time."

"Well, if you are lucky, why don't you take another chance?" asked the stranger.
"Never will I take another chance on a raffle," announced Levi. "The time I took the chance a man raffled off a house, a lot, a horse, a wagon, a cow and a hog. And I won the hog."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Timepieces Are Given Most Rigorous Tests

Anyone may send his watch to the bureau of standards for a test to ascertain whether it qualifies as a timepiece of the highest grade, designated as "class A." This privilege is used chiefly by watch manufacturers, who are thereby enabled to furnish each tested timepiece with a government certificate.

To ascertain the accuracy of a timepiece it is placed in a large glass-front refrigerator, equipped with automatic devices that keep the temperature at a fixed point, in which the watch "runs" for stated periods at various degrees of heat and cold. When the regulator has been set, the flow of cold air from the ice chest above the watch chamber is controlled by a thermostatic device, and, when necessary, warm air is introduced from the outside. The three temperatures at which all watches undergoing the test are kept are 45, 70 and 95 degrees Fahrenheit.

To qualify in "class A" a watch must not vary more than four or five seconds from correct time, and, in addition, it must be able to repeat its performance in a variety of positions and under varying conditions. In all there are eleven specifications in the test, some of them involving technical calculations.

Under test made by the watchmaker under test from correct time is recorded by means of a chronograph.—Washington Star.

The Point of View

"The finest sight in the world to-day," says the Utica Observer-Dispatch, "is the mile after mile of cozy, warm-lighted houses." It is a fine sight, though we object to the ranking system in fine sights. It is a fine sight to the motorist, driving along on a chilly evening. The lights go up in the houses that line the road, and he says, "Ah, these homes of happy people!" And somebody about to draw the shades in one of the houses looks out at the speeding motorist and says yearningly, "Pretty soft to be able to dash around the country anywhere you like."—P. P. A. in New York World.

Camel's Hair Cloth

Real camel's hair is used in making camel's hair cloth. It comes from the cooler sections of China, as the hair obtained from the camels in the warmer sections is neither fine nor abundant. At a certain season of the year camels shed their hair, which drops off in bunches, most frequently while the camels are asleep. When a caravan is on a trip there is always a special boy whose duty it is to gather up the shed hair in baskets. When a port is reached the hair is sorted and baled for export.

Horseshoe Love Hits Place in All Lands

If a girl walks along the road and finds a horseshoe with the open end facing her it means good luck. The first found horseshoe she hangs at home over the window, but the open end must face into the room. The others she places in her room, too, until such time as she finds her "beau." She draws him to herself by then throwing out one horseshoe after another, so that he will not observe it until the last one, over the window, is reached. When she throws this one out she says, "Horseshoe dear, please ring out and attract my young man! If I do not marry in a year, I'll become a servant girl; if I do not marry in two years I'll be able to marry only the shepherd; and who waits for three years remains an old maid."

Anyone finding a horseshoe should pick it up, turn it about three times and then throw it over the head. If the shoe falls with the open end facing the person he shall have good luck. If it turns the other way, it portends hard luck.—Czechoslovak Review.

Retreat of Napoleon

On the retreat from Moscow, Napoleon traveled from near Vilna to Paris in 312 hours, a journey of about 1,400 miles. This was an average of almost five miles an hour, and was remarkable, considering conditions of roads and weather.

Irresistible

"Tell a man you think a horse race is gnetter be crooked," said Uncle Eben, "an' he'll be pow'ful indignant. Jes' de same he's liable to hang around for information as to what de sure thing bet is gnetter be."

Origin of Name Calvary

The name Calvary is derived from "Calvaria," which is the Latin equivalent for Golgotha, meaning a bare skull. The name was given to a rock or prominence shaped to give the semblance of a skull.

The bluffer sleeps under short covers. If he pulls 'em up to cover his head, he uncovers his feet. Bluffers rarely bluff any but themselves for very long.

Another Fish Story

Scientists have discovered a fish that shouts, and are likely to receive praise and fame for doing so. Now what would we say of a plain fisherman who reported such a discovery?

Back of every one -
the largest rubber organization in the world

EVERY year you give a lot of time and labor and go to considerable expense to can fruits and vegetables for table use in the winter months. You select your fruit with the greatest care, you pack it painstakingly, you process it once, twice—maybe oftener—to sterilize it thoroughly. Then you must depend on your jar rubber to keep it germ-free for weeks, months—maybe a year or more!

What is back of the jar rubber you use? What security does it give you against loss from spoiling?

When you use "U. S." Jar Rubbers you have the security of knowing that they are made by the largest rubber organization in the world—the United States Rubber Company—and that into every one goes the richest rubber experience. The high-grade rubber selected is grown on the United States Rubber Company's own plantations in Sumatra.

In their own great laboratories highly trained rubber experts develop "U. S." Jar Rubbers.

"U. S." Jar Rubbers are tested for stretch and "set"—the two important things every jar rubber must do if it is to make an air-tight seal. It must stretch just enough to slip easily over the neck of the jar and then it must snap back into place—or "set." Only a perfect "set" will keep your pack air-tight.

No matter what method of canning you use, you can depend on "U. S." Jar Rubbers for a snug, permanent seal every time. Ask your dealer for them.

Staple Mexican Dish Is Chili and Beans

Before banditry and revolution became the hobby of old Mexico the natives were the largest producers of chili in the world. Chili was canned for the first time at Las Cruces, N. M., more than 250 years ago, it is said. Now the big California packing houses feature red and green pimientos as one of their specialties. New Mexicans prefer their local variety to any other because, they say, it has more fire to the ounce than the milder, sweet peppers. At home the fresh green pods are blistered and the outer skin peeled off. This is stewed down into a sauce, with the never-failing addition of a clove or garlic. In the winter the dried scarlet pods are roasted and ground by hand into powder, the fineness of the powder being one of the tests of the Mexican housekeeper. Chili and beans—the large brown Mexican beans—is a staple dish in the Mexican home. Enchiladas—thick pancakes spread with the hotter-better chili sauce between and running over them. Eggs with chili, meat with chili (chili con carne), tamales, these and many more are peppery delicacies which make the chili crop of economic importance.

Glory Long Departed From Ancient Cities

The residents of ancient Sidon believed in coolness and comfort and their highways were vaulted. Solid vaulted masonry gave the city a subterranean appearance. Today sawtooths are so abundant that they are used for watering troughs and for building walls and houses. Tyre and Sidon were once towns of great wealth and importance. Today Tyre is only an inconspicuous town of about 6,000 inhabitants, although it was once the prize for which kings and conquerors contended. Pharaohs of Egypt, kings of Assyria and Babylon and Persia, and Greece and Rome, as well as the Crusaders and the Moslems, all fought furious battles and maintained incredible sieges for the capture of Tyre. Although encircled with historical associations and literary traditions, this once-powerful Tyre, which planted Carthage and established colonies in Europe, and was mistress of the Mediterranean, is now a ruin with few traces of its ancient grandeur, all having been submerged by sand and sea.

Smelling Salts

Fainting indicates that the action of the heart has for some reason become disturbed, with the result that the blood is no longer properly and regularly pumped up to the brain. The essential feature of "smelling salts" is the ammonia—the other ingredients being added to make the effect more pleasant—and when we sniff this ammonia we irritate and stimulate a special group of nerve cells called the "respiratory center," situated at the base of the brain. This center, feeling irritated, immediately sends out a message to the lungs, telling them to take in more air to counteract the effects of the ammonia. So we are forced to breathe more deeply, and the oxygen that we thereby take in enriches the blood, restarts the proper circulation to the brain, and so restores full consciousness.

Had Odd Affliction

In "Ten Years' Experience in a Sanatorium," published by the Medical Research Council, Sir St. Clair Thompson describes a case believed unique. An accountant was taken to the hospital suffering from an affliction of the throat believed to be tuberculosis. He was very husky, and was gradually losing his voice. Then the doctors noticed small black bodies about the size of millet seeds. Under the microscope, they showed a fungus called aspergillus fumigatus, and soon cured the patient. This disease is chiefly met with in birds. It has been found in ducks, geese, fowls, pigeons, pheasants, bustards, swans, flamingoes, jays, and golden plovers. Sir St. Clair Thompson declares that he had never known a case recognized and described in the literature before.

PICTURE STORY OF MODERN FLAPPER

A lot of folks who have a n idea that the modern girl is headed straight for the demitasse bowl are in for an awful shock when "The Enemy Sex," James Cruze latest Paramount production, is flashed on the screen at the Coyle theatre where it opens today, for a four day run. Incidentally the picture proves that Kipling knew what he was talking about when he pointed out that the female of the species is more deadly than the male.

"The Enemy Sex" was adapted by Walter Woods and Harvey Thew from the popular novel "The Salamander" by Owen Johnson. It is a story of a beautiful chorus girl—a modern flapper—who becomes the storm-center of five worldly-wise men and turns down wealth, a career, a place in society to nurse and bring back to health, a drink-sodden, irresponsible youth with whom she falls in love. Here is vindication of the much-maligned girl of today, the supposedly gay and careless flapper whose one aim in life, according to certain blue-nosed Puritans, is to have a grand and glorious good time. Dodo Baxter, the chorus girl, is a shining example of the typical gold-digger, yet Dodo proves that at heart she realizes what are the worth-while things in life. Furthermore she shows that she is more than a match for the "enemy sex"—that the average girl is quite capable of taking care of herself.

BUILD HOSPITAL IN OTHER TOWNS

subscribe is to maintain in this worthy humanitarian institution a permanent record of the identity of those fraternal bodies and clubs in our city who are interested enough in civic and humanitarian affairs to subscribe to an institution that will perpetuate in a practical way their ideals."

Chairman Daly mailed special deliveries to all pastors in the city Saturday, inviting them to make announcement at all church services yesterday, and for the next two Sundays, in order that the church people who are leaders in promoting the humanitarian work such as the hospital represents, might be thoroughly informed as to the merit and worth of the appeal for subscriptions to the building fund. The reports are that the ministers and priests all responded cordially to the invitation and will co-operate in all feasible ways throughout the campaign.

There was no meeting of the executive committee Saturday, but the meeting Friday was the best the committee has had yet. Several members of the committee spoke and all were earnest and enthusiastic in their determination to complete the work of the executive committee early this week, so the large organization can

"The present hospital, while old and inadequate, does not represent this community the way it should," declared Chairman Daly speaking to the committee. "The present hospital does not give our doctors an opportunity to do the best work which they are capable of doing. The city has excellent doctors, surgeons and dentists—in fact as good as can be found anywhere. But they do not have the right kind of workshop. The present hospital was all right for a start, but it is not the kind of a hospital that this community should expect to continue using. The Mayo Brothers did not start with a hospital any bigger than ours, but they grew. That is what we are doing. We are growing. I am sure that when the people of this community understand this hospital proposition they will subscribe liberally and that we will exceed the $200,000 mark."

Vice Chairman John D. Berryman, who has been interested in securing a new hospital here for many years, declared, "We are not only losing time by not having a modern hospital, but we are losing money by the expense of going to Pittsburgh and other cities to see our friends and relatives who are in hospitals there because they cannot secure the right kind of hospital accommodations here. I am sure that $50,000 annually is spent in this way. When we get this hospital constructed we will save that much to the residents of this community easily and in addition we will have our friends and relatives close home where we can see them more easily and without such great loss of time."

"Charleroi is going to build this new hospital in Pittsburgh, in Washington, and in other cities if it does not build it at Lock No. 4," continued Mr. Berryman, "as the money spent traveling to other hospitals to see patients and the money spent by patients for hospital service in other cities, is large enough to build this hospital many times over in two or three years."

"Wise business men and intelligent citizens will not permit this condition to go on unreminded. The time has come to save this time, save this money, and in so doing save the lives of our friends and families and finally cooperate with the doctors and with nature to the end that we may secure this most needed institution for our community."

James T. Heffran, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who was for 11 years coroner of Washington county, declared from his personal experience and observation that hundreds of lives will be saved by the new hospital that is to be erected as soon as the people of this community subscribe $150,000 to $200,000.

Mr. Heffran, who is a representative in the Legislature from this district and a member of the hospital campaign executive committee, declared that the doctors here were often not in a position to give the proper treatment, including a quick, and accurate diagnosis, to cases that are sent to the local hospital.

"It was frequently my experience in my work as coroner to find out that the delay in treating patients who had to be taken to distant hospitals caused trouble that proved fatal," state Mr. Heffran. "This was because of the nervous shock which the injured man was unable to withstand over the long period of time required to take him to some distant hospital because our own hospital was full or unable to properly care for them."

MONUMENT TO MARK VALOR ON THE SEA

Shrine on Potomac for Navy and Merchant Sailors.

Washington—A new shrine to American valor at sea is to take its place soon among the monuments and memorials here in the nation's capital to the great dead of America. Wrought in bronze, it will stand at the brink of the peaceful Potomac, that the river may bear with it to the sea a message of remembrance to those who have gone down in ships for the flag, whether in men-of-war or plodding merchantmen.

Across the wide river, high among the rolling Virginia hills, are the clustering shafts of Arlington National cemetery, where many who died heroic deaths rest amid their military honors. The monument will be built by popular subscription. It will cost $500,000 or more. The site has been set aside by law and the form of the memorial itself has been decided upon by the members of the committees who are, for the most part, men who have served America on the sea.

No Such Monument.
Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske (retired), chairman of the committee in charge, said:

"There is no such monument anywhere in the world. There is no monument that attests any appreciation by men and women of the dangers which the men of the sea have braved or the conquest of these dangers which they have achieved. There is no visible reminder of our debt to the men of the sea which has welded widely separated countries into a coherent world."

"Though monuments to military commanders adorn selected spots in all the civilized countries of the earth, only a few monuments to naval men exist, and virtually all of these commemorate war achievements only. The long and hazardous voyages of merchant seamen who made the ocean safe for commerce and spread civilization over the earth, though told in song and story, have never received the recognition which all men know to be the highest—that of an enduring monument, erected on some exalted spot, where it can be seen of men."

"Such a tribute it is the intent of the Navy and Marine Memorial association to render the men of the sea; but it will memorialize, as well those from whom the supreme sacrifice was not required, but who braved the same dangers as those from whom it was required, and stood equally ready to make it. It says to the countless millions who have profited by their work that they must not forget that work or neglect the men who did it."

Deserved Tribute.
"So, while this monument symbolizes the grandeur of the sea, it powerfully suggests the grandeur of the seaman's art, which has made a conquest of the sea and marked a myriad of paths across its forbidding waters. And it calls upon every one to visualize what seamen have done for him, and to pay a rightful tribute to those who, through all the dim centuries of the distant past, have gone down to the sea in ships, and have done their business in great waters."

Associated with Admiral Fiske on the executive committee are Walter F. Morgan, treasurer; William F. Morgan, Jr., secretary; Anna M. Graham, Col. Robert M. Thompson, Col. Edward A. Simpson, Ray C. Shepherd and Herbert N. Davidson, headquarters of the committee being New York city.

The honorary inaugural committee is headed by Secretary Wilbur of the navy as chairman, and includes Assistant Secretary Theodore Roosevelt, Admiral Leigh C. Palmer, president of the Emergency Fleet corporation, Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commandant of the Marine corps, and Rear Admiral William S. Benson, U. S. N., retired, of the shipping board.

Origin of Schools in Scotland

Elementary schools were established in Scotland by the provisions of the elementary education act of 1872. Prior to that, however, education had been regulated by the Scottish parliament. As early as 1896 an act was passed for settling schools, providing for the maintenance of a school in every parish in connection with kirk.

Old Tablet Records Birth

A tablet recording the birth of a girl, Herrenia Gemella, March 11, 128 A. D., is preserved in the vaults of the University of Michigan. It was found in Egypt in 1922 and was translated at the British museum. The wooden leaves open like a folding slate. Though the seals have disappeared the names of the witnesses are read with ease.

Inch in Millionths

It is no longer necessary to use guesswork even when dividing an inch into a million parts, because a new machine for comparing the standards of length has been made at the National Physical laboratory in England. This computer is capable of accurately measuring the millionth part of an inch.

The Winner

The reputation of staying on your job, of sticking by your proposition through thick and thin, of putting things through, no matter how difficult, will be of untold advantage to you. It is the man who does this who rises to the executive positions and achieves big things.

Meaning of Putting Right Foot Forward

In getting out of bed in the morning always take care to put the right foot first, or the day will be unlucky. Many otherwise practical people also take care to place the right foot first when entering a house, says London Tit-Bits.

The origin of the very common superstition with regard to the right foot is easily accounted for by association. It is a psychological offspring of the word "right," and its meaning of "in conformity with moral law, permitted by the principle which ought to regulate conduct," and so on.

One word as applied to the side of the human body, which is toward the east when the face is turned to the north is of exactly the same derivation, and over its present application to the fact that most people are "right-handed," and therefore, the right hand is the right hand to do things with.

By extension the word came to cover that whole side of the body. And so, in getting out of bed, if the right foot is right, the left foot must be wrong. Moreover, the word "left" is from the Anglo-Saxon, meaning worthless, and, applied originally to the left arm, has suffered the same extension as the word "right" over the one side of the body.

Relief for Leprosy Found by Indian King

Legend says that before the time of Buddha, Rama, king of Benares fell a victim to the dreaded disease of leprosy. The court physicians were powerless to help him, therefore he abdicated and laid himself down in the forest to die. But instead of dying, he was marvelously restored to strength and health by eating the fruits and leaves of the kalaw tree. In the jungles he found a royal princess, daughter of a king of northern India, who had been cast out by her family because she, too, was suffering from the dreadful disease. He taught her to cure herself in the same way, and later took her as his wife, and they and their 32 sons founded a city on the spot where the kalaw trees grew. And so for centuries bazaris from India to Burma and Siam have sold seeds of the kalaw tree, known to Europe as chaumogra, for leprosy and other skin disorders.
